Burial of Sir John Moore.

By CHARLES WOLFE

Charles Wolfe was born in Dublin, Ireland, December 14, -1791; he graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, in 1814. In 1817 he took orders in the Church of England and became cursts of the parish of Donoughimore, Ireland. It is died at the Cove of Cork, now Queenstown, 1823.

Sir John Moore was killed at Corunna, in Spain, January 16, 1899, in a battle between the French and English. This poem was in Byron's opinion cone of the best lyrics of that prolling age. "The third status," he added, "is perfect."

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note As his corse to the rampart we hurried; Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot O'er the grave where our here we buried

We buried him darkly at dead of night, The sods with our bayonets turning; By the struggling moonbeam's misty light, And the lantern dimly burning.

No useless coffin enclosed his breast Not in sheet nor in shroud we wound him; But he lay like a warrior taking his rest, With his martial cloak around him.

and short were the prayers we said, And we spoke not a word of sorrow; But we steadfastly gazed on the face that was dead, And we bitterly thought of the morrow.

We thought as we hollowed his narrow bed, And smoothed down his lonely pillow.

That the fee and the stranger would tread o'er his head, And we far away on the billow!

Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone, And o'er his cold ashes upbraid him,-But little he'll reck, if they let him sleep on In the grave where a Briton has laid him.

But half our heavy task was done, When the clock struck the hour for retiring; And we heard the distant and random gun That the foe was sullenly firing.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down. From the field of his fame fresh and gory; We carved not a line, and we raised not a stone-

Has Troubles.

The "cook strike," which tooubles housekeepers so much, and seems to be a kind of all-the-year-found strike, knowing no end, no compromises and no arbitration, has reached the executive mansion, and yesterday the Governor and his family had to dine out.

Just why the cook went on a strike is not in evidence, and the striking chef has not shown up to offer an explanation, but the fact remains that the mansion is without a cook, and it may be that a good job is open to a properly recommended artist.

Impressive and Striking Scene at Last Session of the Y. M. C. A. Convention.

Mr. Mott Spoke to Great Audience on Sunday and Received Contribution for Cuban Work.

By common consent, the twenty-seventh State Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of, Virginia, which came to an end here on Sunday night, was the most notable gathering of its kind ever held in the State.

Every element contributed to render the ceting a great success and the general effect of the sessions has been to inspire and encourage the Y. M. C. A. workers and to deepen the interest felt by the community in the great movement among the young manhood of the age.

The entertainment of the delegates was perfect. The delegates were well housed and well taken care of in every particuand well taken care of in every particular. The various social features arranged were happily conceived and was happily executed. To the ladies of the city particular credit is due. The three lunches served by them on Saturday were among the most thoroughly enjoyable events of the convention, not alone for the good things there were to eat, but also on account of the delightful surroundings, the instead decorations, and the charming hostesses.

CLOSING SERVICE.

CLOSING SERVICE.

The closing service of the convention was held in the Second Proshyterian Church Sunday night at 2:15 o'clock.

Delegates occupied pulpits of the city churches at the morning and night services, speaking to interested audiences. Pastors followed with words commendatory of the work of the association.

The speaker at the farewell service was John R. Mott, who on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon captivated his auditors in the convention and at the great maps meeting for men in the Academy of Music Mr. Mott's subject was "Virginia and the Young Men of Non-Christian Lands." He gave a description of this fierce temptations that assail young men in the different countries of the world which he had visited, and showed great feeling as he spoke of the responsibility that was "upon lim and the association of North America to help these young men. The practical thing about his address was his reference to Virginia's part in association foreign mission effort. On January 1st of the present year Mr. Joseph E. Hubbard, college secretary of the Virginia associations, severed his competence mith the committee to become ploneer association secretary in, Cuba, at the city of Havana, referred to by Mr. Mott as the pivotal point in Latin America.

Mr. Hubbard is a graduate of Harvard University, '98, and was president of the University Association while at Harvard. Becoming engaged with the State Committee, he taught school in Charlestonic, S.-I.C., and was especially helpful in the Charleston Young Men's Christian Association. His services in Virginia, especially among students, but likewise in the small towns and occasional visitation to the city and railroad associations, has given him a broad view of the association work, and fits him for the important undertaking to which he has recently been appointed.

Mr. Mott asked the audience for an offering towards the support of the work in Havana, and subscriptions were received amounting to $550.

Interesting Services.

At the West View Baptist Church, corner Grove Avenue and Mendow Street, the services on Sunday were of more than the usual interest. At the morning service, their endingers occupied seats in the pulpit—Dr. Mercer, the pastor; Dr. William H. Whistit of Richmond College, and Dr. J. R. Garlick, of Chestnut Hill. Dr. Whitsit prached an abla discourse, his text being the apostolic benediction. At the close of the sermon, the pastor received and, on behalf of the church received and, on behalf of the church is deacon. At a recent meeting of the church Mr. Bubank was elected to the clurch Mr. Bubank was elected to the clurch Wr. Bubank was elected to the office of deacon to serve for a term of four years. The recognition service which was simple, consisted of prayer, the act of recognition by the pastor of a service of a deacon by Dr. Garlick. The celebration of the ordinance of the Lord's Supper followed this service.

At night there was a song service and a silring address by Mr. Otto D. Holsenbuttel, secretary of the navy F. M. C. A. at Norfolk, and Mr. M. C. A. at Fort Monroe.

At Laurel Street.

The pastor of Laurel Street Methodist Church on Sunday night began a series of sermons which promises to be lightly interesting. The church was crowded to hear Dr. Johnson discuss "Absalom, of the Polished Politician." Dr. Johnson told of how Absalom, in the seeking of office and popularity, would resort to helnous crimes in accomplishing his desires, and how, with his decist and hypocristy, he hoped to reach the highest planacle of success.

Rev. Calloway Robertson, of Norfolk, preached in the morning, and his sister, Miss Carmen, sang two excellent solos.

Mr. Thraves, in a most eloquent manner, set forth the viriues of his favorite. Mr. Robertson. Mr. Robertson has played in right field for three years and is a good hitter, and in overy way suitable for the position. Mr. Ish was nominated by Mr. Clarke, and the fight was confined to these two. Both men are quite popular among their separate crowds, and the fight was unusually close. The ballot resulted in a victory for Mr. Ish, the result being 65-64.

The prospects for a good team this year are very promising, though the team has had intid chance so far to practice, on account of the bad weather. At present, however, some men are showing up unusually well, and their positions are practically assured. E. W. Hudgins and Wright are to most promising material for catcher. Woodfin, Miles and Throckmorton have been doing some good twilling. Combs, Woodfin and Mehch are working hard for short. Miles will probably stand the best show for first. Handy for second Cardoxa and 1sh probably stand the best show for the field.
